

STARDROPS NOV 7 -13

image credit

The theme for the next few weeks is about trusting intuitive powers aligned with logic, common sense and facts. If we can align ourselves with the combination of these things, we'll move forward with our lives in the correct direction. Sometimes we'll be motivated to speak or act, and other times, be silent and patient. Be alert, watchful, there's an eclipse coming up!

November 5 to Nov 23, 2021

Mercury enters Scorpio This wonderful planet of intelligence and information, begins a period of inspired creativity for us.

Our thoughts turn towards going deeper. We want to resolve things now. Whether it is with relationships, the need for togetherness, helpful collaboration and joining others in order to pool resources and achieve more during this time or simply a determination to handle physical cleaning, repairs, organization etc...or our jobs, our professional performance, it's a great time to really prove what we are capable of doing and offering to others.

The motivation of Mercury can be directed towards any particular project you are concentrating on, with a level of thoroughness and detail, no matter how much more time, money or effort it takes. The mind desires to go the extra mile, beyond the norm, and materialize an outcome far better than what one normally might do.

November 5 - 8

Mercury sextile Venus - The following three cycles, are creating a Finger of God, or a Yod, to the North Node in Gemini.

This period of time offers friendly, imaginative, constructive conversations. Meetings and work go well. People understand each other, and are in a good mood. An excellent time to have either casual coffee with friends or professional discussions.

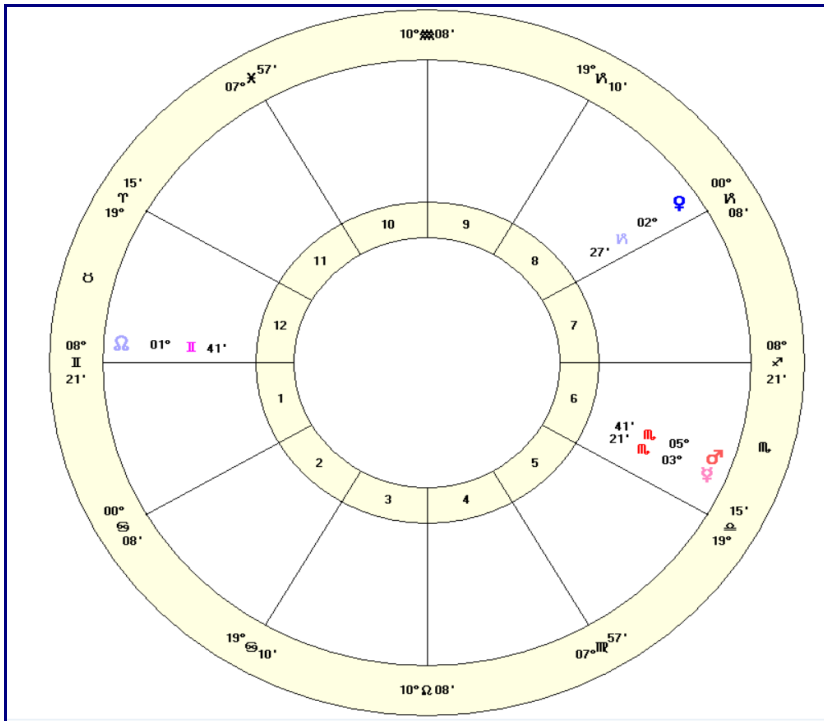

This is a time to reach out, solve issues, plan, make quick trips, come to an honest and deep understanding, achieve resolve. It's a time to simply connect.

Discussions and creative planning brings satisfaction. In addition to the creatively inspired projects you're intent on doing, the sextile enhances our ability to receive information which brings so much more accuracy, more specific and detailed than normal. It will help us get Information we need in order to make smarter decisions or go deeper and enhance a creative design, a story, or go the extra mile with work analysis. It's a time of connecting some dots so we have a greater awareness of what is going on. Mail, documents, forms and important communications can go well now. Good news can come.

November 5 - 7

Mercury inconjunct Node and Venus inconjunct Node

For a few days, no matter what the inconvenience or possible change of schedules, obligations and adjustments in your day, you will want to concentrate upon some concept or puzzle that is pulling on you to unravel, a true story based on reality, rather than guess work. No more patience..no more guessing. You want facts.

The lesson for this double inconjunct (A YOD which appears above to look like the letter Y, pointing to the North Node in Gemini) is to trust your own deductive reasoning more than what others who speculate, spin stories, tell you. Trust your logical conclusions along with an intuition which provides greater conviction than other external influences now which tend to be disjointed, missing logical pieces.

In other words, think for yourself and trust your instincts.

November 6 - 11

Continuing with Mercury in Scorpio, it is conjoined by Mars in Scorpio and both square Saturn which will be exact on the 10th.

This can feel frustrating as you have worked hard to achieve your vision, a certain knowing as to what you need to do, then suddenly it might be delayed because of finances or lack of opportunities, or inability to move on the insights at this time. Don't worry, it's only for a few days.

As our mental focus becomes even more one-pointed, our determination to stay on top of the ever increasing complexity of decisions become harder as more and more steps or layers are noticed to be handled, more requests from family, favors asked from friends start rolling in. Get prepared for the need to say no to some situations, refine your path and remember what your priority is, why you are doing what you're doing. Where are you going? Don't allow others to interject so many other options, or you lose sight of the original intuitive guidance you received weeks ago. You've been on a journey since mid September, with each week, the planetary movements have been layering one upon another event, all leading to the sharpening of the mind, then the decision to take action.

As for vehicles, computers, machinery, equipment, and electronics, take care of your stuff and watch out for some delays with travel. Frustrations are typically connected with this sort of astrology, but if you are prepared with alternatives, you should be good.

November 10 - 12

Mercury in Scorpio inconjunct Chiron

A bit of a glitchy day. Our feelings might be hurt over something which is slight, but the mind is going too far with making a big deal about it. Time to genuinely accept why you are sensitive to this situation and be honest. Yet refrain from blaming and punishing someone for such a small thing. Usually there is a reason why others behave in certain ways, we might not have the whole story. It's just a few days. What you want to watch for are a continuation of a story line which doesn't have resolution.

November 12

Sun in Scorpio trine Neptune

Compassion, healing, love and the empathetic position you take for life, for another, is active now. It's better to love and think the highest of someone than dig, analyze and tear apart every little thing which appears wrong.

November 11 -13

Mars inconjunct Chiron

Another bit of a challenging moment feeling out of sorts, disconnected or out of sync with life. Are you trying to understand if this person or situation has been reliable or not? On the same wavelength or not? Once they could have presented themselves in such a genuine manner, but now, how could it be so disturbingly opposite, so disjointed in appearance?

If this is not a person, it might be how something is playing out. From day to day, you're not sure how the situation is going to turn out. It can be wearing.

The Mercury and Mars (your thoughts are energized now)) are being tweaked by Chiron - this Chiron activates old wounds, sore spots and frustrations. Try your best from Nov 10 -13, to let some things go, and simply observe, watch, be mindful of your own emotions and how you want to run your own every day life, regardless of an external stressful situation, or if someone else's moods, temperament or issues are not providing the best security for you.

November 12 - 13

Mercury in Scorpio oppose Uranus in Taurus

What a better way to wrap up a few days of possible slight hurts, uncertainty or offense which might lead to serious questioning where someone is coming from, the temptation to separate, to cut off, walk away or disconnect from a situation, than to have now, an opposition from the Planet Uranus! It might be seriously on your mind now to just walk out - but you had better be really sure, because once words leave your mouth, it might be way too late to reverse the message if things seem better, later.

A side note - Mercury and Mars both in Scorpio, the planet of release, purging and endings of all sorts, this could be a hard week for those who are facing challenges with their jobs, complex life situations or saying goodbye to loved ones. Stay clear headed, be patient now, rather than react - keep warm, well, keep up with your supplements, make love your priority and cherish everyone in your circle of light, as this and last week could drive some hard realities home to us. For some, it's with information we discover, whether personal or global, which just doesn't make any sense. With Mercury and Mars in Scorpio, the sign of deep investigations, penetrating thoughts, research, and the planet Venus in Capricorn, the sign of responsibilities, regulations, the law, systems and authority over our lives, both planets in an inconjunct to the North Node in Gemini - either which way you look or think or thought how things should be or have been, the Node takes the lead. Gemini simply deals with facts, information and delivers the message you need to have. This week, it might be positive or challenging, Either way, a decision to take the high road is upon us.

Lunar Eclipse in Taurus/Scorpio November 17, 2021

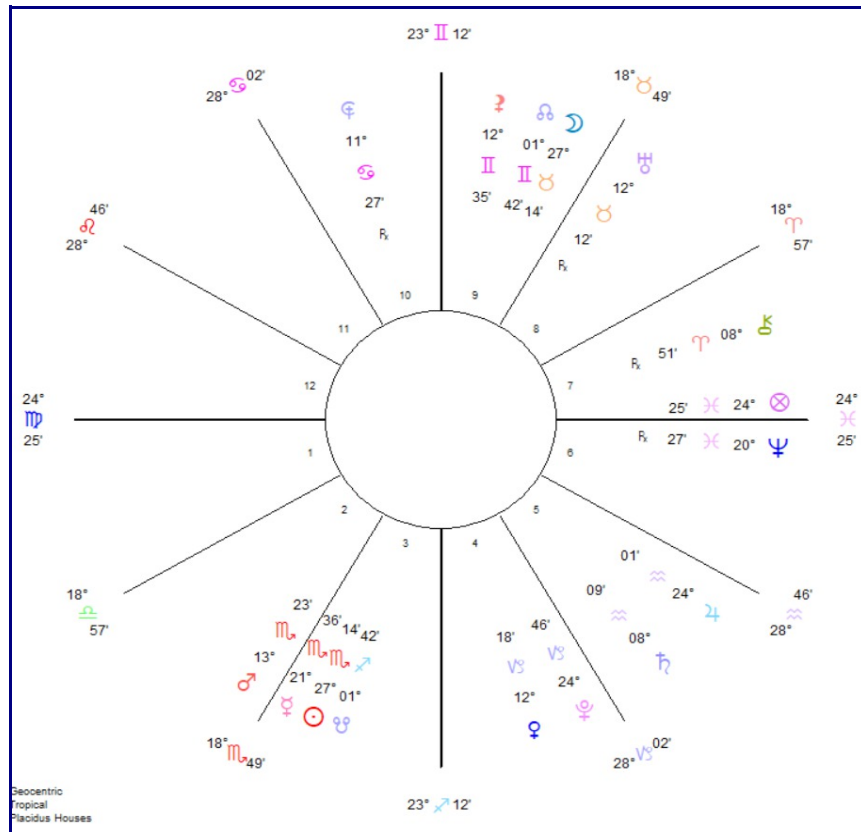

The tendency to over estimate how safe and secure one is, can be risky. Conservative thinking and common sense with your life circumstances is required. Typically, mostly every lunar eclipse I can think of, someone in my family decides to do something out of the ordinary, and the timing of events which under any other circumstances might be fine, but under a Lunar Eclipse, not a good idea.

Prepare for November 17 Lunar eclipse. A week before and a few weeks following, this cycle can cause very strange situations. This is NOT a time to be taking risks. The Sun in Scorpio and Moon in Taurus are both in square to Jupiter in Aquarius.

Every time this happens, I simply can't believe it. Rather than control everyone's lives, I hold the best outcomes in my mind and give some affirmations for positive outcomes, and let it go. What can you do? In fact, one of the problems with a Lunar Eclipse is:

It has an eerie way of setting up events, outings and circumstances that might trigger problems exactly on the Lunar Eclipse date, such as births, dates, sudden marriages, outings, high risk sports, travel to unknown places with unknown outcomes in mind, special events and get together with potentially unstable situations or people involved.

It can cause people to not think much about an odd situation, sort of like a mind wipe - as if everything should work out fine, what's the problem? Even me, I'll blow it off ignorantly, and assume everything will be okay - what could happen, until slowly as the days go by, I remember, "Isn't it a Lunar Eclipse?"

Not everyone has these experiences under Lunar eclipses. Or if they do, they might be just close calls.

Some people notice certain numbers pop up repeatedly when significant events take place - others have different warnings - many, it's a lunar eclipse. The lunar eclipse will cause people to rush into things, or put themselves in vulnerable positions.

Mostly one will experience a positive enthusiastic adventurous outlook as they commit to dates, sudden marriages or plans with others which come literally out of nowhere, and end in disaster, usually within a few weeks.

It has a hypnotic effect upon one to move forward with things that seem perfectly harmless. Like an odorless poison.

My advice, try not to purchase anything huge, travel to unknown or potentially stressful places, moving or real estate situations on or around a Lunar Eclipse if you can help it - if any important event is inevitable during that time, prepare for strange deviations of your plans, and even some trickery from slick sales people.

Don't get talked into anything and certainly don't get caught up in a new adventure with a partnership or collaboration of any sort, as it might unravel very quickly, even weeks later. Try not to bring up touchy subjects with partners during a Lunar Eclipse, as it will most likely backfire terribly.

With the square to Jupiter, it exaggerates the energy of assuming everything is just fine - too much wonderfulness is felt just before with intense optimism, neglecting to see the signs of a scam or disappointment lurking.

Along with all the above, this November's Lunar Eclipse I suspect, will expose hypocrisy, moral issues with others or a realization of someone's lack of common sense. The Jupiter square Scorpio/Taurus intensifies expectations and assumptions, then as it emerges around November 17, it all comes out what something really was about. Remember, Scorpio rules our clear vision, Taurus rules our worth and Jupiter square exaggerates, clouds or dismisses.

AFFIRMATION

“Mighty God Presence, be my eyes, take charge of my outer activities each and every day. Take command of my meetings, arrangements, my life circumstances, and always send powerful protection, angels to my side and to the side of my loved ones.

I AM the divine love, wisdom and clarity in action every day, warding off naturally all potential dangers to my well being and the well being of those I love. I thank you and accept this done in full power, Amen.”

APPOINTMENTS

Receive Starfires Newsletters

sirius@starfires.com

www.starfires.com