

Stardrops November 27 2022

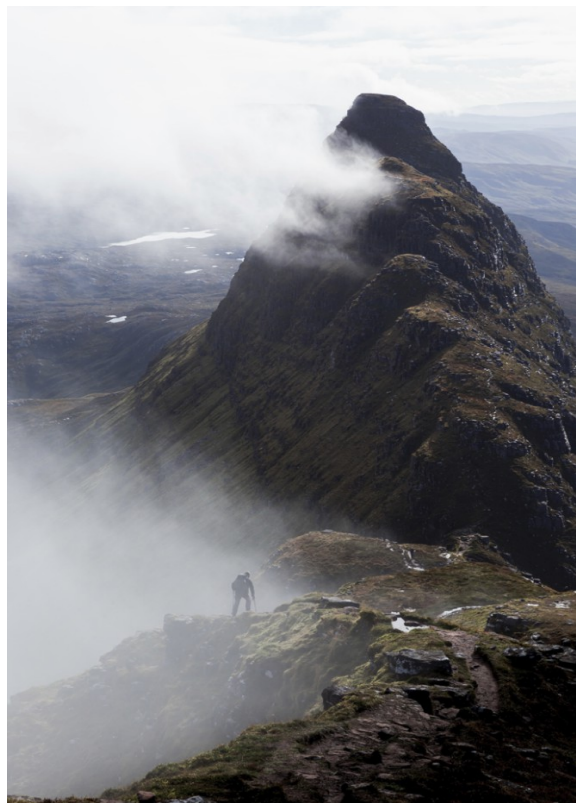

The theme this week centers upon great attention to details, making specific plans, absorbing facts and taking one day at a time. Securing each day's events and seeing each one as a Victory within itself. It sounds like an extremely careful, mindful time doesn't it.

We're moving swiftly but quietly through the weeks ahead, while something powerful is penetrating the world. It's not the best time to expect huge breakthroughs resolving big things. (This has been the case for the past few months in general.)

If we were to capture the essence of this cycle we're in as we wrap up 2022, it would be to get back into a zen sort of path each day. That mindful daily accountability, the presence of being at peace with oneself, with a meditation, a job well done, getting through one's tasks beautifully and being happy with oneself. It's not about taking a break, or going into an inward reprieve, it's more like adopting a higher way of walking through these strange times almost like we're in a mode of serious work but somehow, not letting on as to what you're really doing.

You're going to see some opposing energies, Sagittarius versus Gemini – yet whether dealing with the urge for immediate action/reactions based upon Gemini facts versus projecting oneself into a potentially Sagittarian expansive positive future, the prompt would be to staying in a third space to walk throughout this time.

There is a higher way – observing and considering these two extremes yet desiring to walk quietly an unknown pathway which is simply being with oneself and inner directed, taking one day at a time with what is on your plate. And what you do in that one day counts like never before. Smart decisions, mindful focus upon getting things right as if that day could create your entire future ahead.

Picking up your favorite book or video inspiration, and concentration upon one chapter, one paragraph and using that as the guidepost for the day, and that is sufficient for the day. Doing this each day assists us in slipping into a secret ray period of time/space now through December.

(This is how I sense it, not by any astrological measurements, although it was Venus which inspired this insight.) Something special is going on – it seems to be hidden, a secret, yet what we do, how we keep our composure each day and allow things to unfold, to continue to be productive is the key to navigating through this mysterious time and the key to the higher mysterious power doing its great work. It's as if we're being required to be very still and mindful while something else very big is shifting into place for our world. Putting our important goals in place, being quite systematic with our planning and taking care of basic business will be the need of the hour. Now, let's explore the details of the next few weeks and see what is coming which we must handle in our extraordinary lives yet outwardly seeming so unimportant. You are a lot more than what you see in the mirror, but you already know that.

the cycles

Nov 27 – Dec 1 Mercury at 16*-17* Venus in Sagittarius inconjunct Uranus in Taurus and oppose Mars in Gemini at 16- 19* Retrograde

Our minds and emotional expectations with our personal life situations, our social aspirations work/family/home are being contrasted by Mars' more factual and pragmatic next steps we must take within our jobs, our daily duties based upon real time, real life.

Sagittarius possesses expansive optimistic vision and it is directly opposing Mars in Gemini which only is concerned about the here and now factual legitimate numbers, statistics and logical realistic steps or situations which must be navigated. There can be an escalation of meetings, challenging discussions of the ideal versus pragmatic resources at hand.

Being caught between the two of these extremes won't be too difficult since this cycle only lasts a few days, but is not the best cycle for being neither optimistic or in that pragmatic realism which has little hope for any breakthroughs. Look at these days as more of an exploratory time where things are being weighed. The cycle below can create a more focused path to take, Mars trine Saturn.

The Venus and Mercury in an inconjunct to Uranus demands from us a mental and emotional adjustment, a shift or obligation to put ourselves through something which is inconvenient or challenging. Here is an example: Whatever was the hope of an intervention of a magical transformation of any given situation could be brought back into a stark realism leaving some frozen, however the third way would be to realize, you are the transformation miracle! Everything the world needs to turn it around is within you, it is simply going to require an incredible exciting effort to bring it into fruition.

These two aspects move very quickly through the sky, so some may not experience any part of this at all...but for those who are being touched by it, it's simply one of those detailed moments where our minds are having to concentrate upon exactness of a situation which is inconvenient, yet necessary and could have us dealing with more questions or guess work even after all of that is said and done. Details, planning and moving into the third state of mind which is confidence and effort it can be done, and I need to figure this out. Suddenly millions are on the same track as you, how did that happen so fast? Nov 27-29 Mars in Gemini 19* trine Saturn in Aquarius at 19*

This cycle is the strongest on the day of Nov 28, 2022.

This is a good transit to have on top of the previous. It grounds us in something intuitive/factual we can rely upon. It settles something, completes something, brings us back onto our path, our goals and we feel there are projects, conversations, events we can plan and move on which will be constructive and worth our time and energy we can become invested in.

Energetic, mentally stimulated, high energy with lots to ponder, in general it's positive and won't mess around with any fudging or speculations. It provides the will and energy to do it. It's truth, high-end insight and clarity of the big picture to transform some area of our lives or the global situations.

Nov 30- Dec 4 Mercury / Venus 22* Sagittarius square Neptune at 22* Pisces

We are all quite exhausted with the Mid September through November 21 Mars square Neptune. These two planets put us through major tests of moving forward in life without solid ground. Most of us pushed through strange times, navigating almost in a dream like state as we walked through a world filled with the unknown. Globally there were deceptions, confusions and surprises as we knew from previous Stardrops would occur. But it was the walking the unknown and surreal situations without any sure footing and nebulous outcomes which speckled the transit theme. It dealt with not only a mess, but the desire to confront the mess and aggressively address it, bring it out on the table to expose it to the light.

So we are no longer in that long drawn out mess of foggy hidden undermining things, nebulous undetermined end results of so many unexplained things going on globally and possibly personally (with a dash of human suffering and loss in the mix), Mercury and Venus now replace the Mars, both in square to Neptune. This cycle is far less aggressive yet never the less, it's still foggy, yet in a mystical sort of way.

It's all about carefully observing the past month or two months of any one given situation which needs now, our analytical powers to take it apart, examine the details, what makes sense and what is the logical conclusion we can count upon. It causes discussions and reviewing as to the course of events leading up to the things which have been going on.

A large piece of this analysis will feel like supernatural dream like premonitions, insights, and intuitions, as if profound messages, personal information is being transmitted to certain people (yes you) explaining the truth of things you may have never seen before as to why this and that has happened.

Do not be surprised if it goes back decades of tracking and explaining one theme in your life, or also you can apply this to the build up of where we are today in the world. It's both. There is still the mists, yet profound clearings emerge and you can see things in the past which relate to the now and future as you have never seen in this manner before. It's almost like we had to walk through that misty Neptune overhang which held all the confusion, deceptions, secrets, navigate right through it and here we are, where the clearing is beginning and messages of Mercury and Venus are handed right to you.

Nov 30 – Dec 2 Mercury and Venus at 19* Sagittarius sextile Saturn at 19* Aquarius

These dates are positive for connecting with bright people who have a vision and higher intellect which can logically remain on target, in truth and begin a discussion to problem solve any given situation. It is strong, practical and will bring good results. Bringing new information into a concrete physical and very useful way, sharing it with key people in your life.

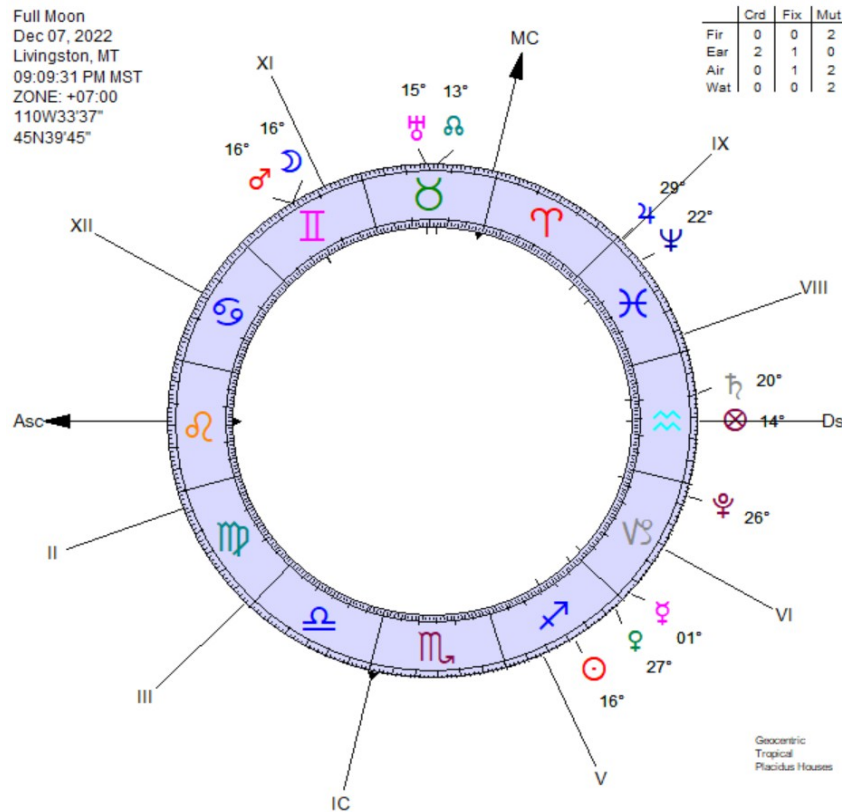

Dec 3-4 Sun at 11-12* Sagittarius inconjunct the Transiting Node at 11* Taurus and trine Chiron at 12* Aries

For some, the vitality, health and energy might be out of sync with the demands of the day. It is a strange two days of adjusting one's attitude, mind set to get back on track with a program or routine again after all these Oct/Nov hullabalos.

Dec 6-9 Venus and Mercury at 29* Sagittarius square Jupiter at 29* Pisces

It's good to be cautious during this time with over embellishing issues, exaggerating, moral or ethical conclusions not easily understood. This cycle simply is not good for talking things out – signing contracts or making significant final decisions. or big purchases. Expect some to try to muddle up your clarity with too many sides and opinions. Stay focused and let it ride.

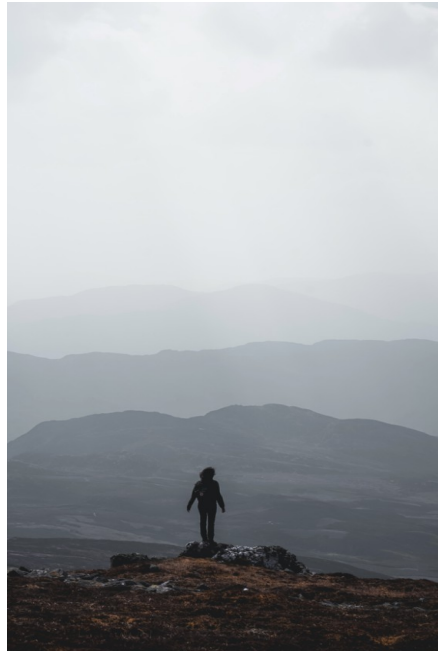

Dec 7 2022 Full Moon in Gemini/Sagittarius

This period is positive for a new start, a plan launched for any purpose, especially if you are involved in some form of writing, communication, important decision making.

This cycle is actually the first day in a few weeks which is promising for clear concise intentions with mostly good results if you move forward on a discussion and objective starting December 7. It will be the culmination of contemplating one's new perspectives and putting them into action. We'll go more into this Full Moon next week.

The one thing I sense is it will bring a powerful decisive action into play based upon what you now know. Your picture is bigger, expansive now, and it's as if you have the authority to speak your mind, lead the way. We can use this time beginning today, to make a ritual of increasing personal guidance, direction leading up to December 7 where we can emerge with a plan for action.

Divine magnificence of the superior mind, release your inspiration into my thoughts, my being and world this day. Clear away all interference to my pure true self and life plan. I AM forever bringing into my physical world your ultimate perfection which keeps me on my right path each day.

APPOINTMENTS
Receive Starfires Newsletters
sirius@starfires.com
www.starfires.com